

SAY CLAIMANT OF BRIDE'S WEALTH IS "IDENTIFIER"

Summer, Who Holds Aged Woman's Fortune, Declared Ex-Convict.

DEEDED ALL TO HIM.

Seventy-Year-Old Wife's Relatives Fight for Fortune She Transferred.

Horton Summer, who is said to be Perren H. Summer, the "great American identifier," is fighting hard in Justice Davis's part of the Supreme Court to retain the valuable property deeded to him by the late Augusta Sommerkorn, of West Twenty-ninth street. Summer married the seventy-year-old widow ten days before her death. Her brother, Fred R. Giebelhausen, and others allege that the summer, when they allege to be an ex-convict, used undue influence to obtain deeds to property owned by his bride. Summer's son Arthur is a co-defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Sommerkorn died without having made a will. Summer, her relatives swear, displayed unusual cunning in obtaining deeds instead of having the aged bride make a will. Under the law, in the absence of a will the husband is entitled to all the personal estate.

"We will prove to the court," said Patrick L. Ryan, who appears for the plaintiffs, "that the defendant is Perren H. Summer, and has a long criminal record. He has served several terms in Sing Sing."

Summer's defense is that he lived in the same house with Mrs. Sommerkorn for six years before he married her, and during that time he attended to all her private business, and that her relatives neglected her.

Stirred Up Jealousy.

The brother called Mary Elizabeth Hardy, a prim young woman, to the stand. She said:

"Summer called once to see Miss Wood. He said to me: 'I have an old lady down in Twenty-ninth street and am going to get her and her bodice. She is very jealous. Come down and see me and make her more jealous. I know a rich Westerner and I'll introduce you.'"

Justice Davis took quick action in an effort to run down a poison theory after Detective George H. Griffin had testified. Griffin identified Horton Summer as Perren H. Summer.

"Somebody sent a complaint to Headquarters," said Griffin, "and I went to the West Twenty-ninth street house. I saw the nurse, Miss Louise Gallap, in the room. Mrs. Sommerkorn was lying in bed, gasping for breath. The nurse handed me a glass with a white substance in it. I took the glass and poured the substance into a bottle. It looked like white crystals. I took the bottle to Headquarters and it was sent to a doctor for analysis."

"Did you subpoena the analyst?"

Justice Davis asked counsel for the plaintiff.

"I have tried to," said Mr. Ryan. "Send to Police Headquarters at once and get that analysis," said Justice Davis.

Katie Beebe, the first witness for the defense, said she had known Mrs. Sommerkorn for many years. Mrs. Sommerkorn, she said, owned a great deal of valuable property in The Bronx, also two houses in Twenty-second street.

"Mrs. Sommerkorn told me," said the witness, "that Summer had been in the real estate business, but gave it up to look after her affairs. She said she was very fond of him, and that she proposed to her many times, and that she had decided to become his wife. I told her not to, and the marriage was delayed."

At this point Justice Davis summoned a young woman from the rear of the courtroom.

"Why were you motoring with your fingers?" he asked.

"I don't know," she said.

"Well, you are fined $25," said Justice Davis.

The woman said her name was Christine French. She had formerly been Mrs. Sommerkorn's housekeeper.

The Russells were married at the Little Church Around the Corner on Sept. 20, 1907, and have one child, Mary, a year old. They lived together in reasonable amity until last November, when Mrs. Russell learned something that caused her to pack up and leave home with her baby.

She employed detectives to watch her husband. On Jan. 17, 1908, Eugene Collins, one of the plaintiffs, according to the evidence taken by the referee, traced Russell and a woman from Russell's office to the Albany Hotel, at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway. Russell registered there. Collins saw him, and took a room with the woman. After a time Collins and another detective named Rafferty went to the room and found what they said they saw the referee was entitled to a divorce.

Russell willingly admitted the detectives, and the referee ordered that he should be confined to his room and that he should be confined to his room and that he should be confined to his room.

"I will prove to the court," said Patrick L. Ryan, who appears for the plaintiffs, "that the defendant is Perren H. Summer, and has a long criminal record. He has served several terms in Sing Sing."

Summer's defense is that he lived in the same house with Mrs. Sommerkorn for six years before he married her, and during that time he attended to all her private business, and that her relatives neglected her.

Stirred Up Jealousy.

The brother called Mary Elizabeth Hardy, a prim young woman, to the stand. She said:

"Summer called once to see Miss Wood. He said to me: 'I have an old lady down in Twenty-ninth street and am going to get her and her bodice. She is very jealous. Come down and see me and make her more jealous. I know a rich Westerner and I'll introduce you.'"

Justice Davis took quick action in an effort to run down a poison theory after Detective George H. Griffin had testified. Griffin identified Horton Summer as Perren H. Summer.

"Somebody sent a complaint to Headquarters," said Griffin, "and I went to the West Twenty-ninth street house. I saw the nurse, Miss Louise Gallap, in the room. Mrs. Sommerkorn was lying in bed, gasping for breath. The nurse handed me a glass with a white substance in it. I took the glass and poured the substance into a bottle. It looked like white crystals. I took the bottle to Headquarters and it was sent to a doctor for analysis."

"Did you subpoena the analyst?"

Justice Davis asked counsel for the plaintiff.

"I have tried to," said Mr. Ryan. "Send to Police Headquarters at once and get that analysis," said Justice Davis.

Katie Beebe, the first witness for the defense, said she had known Mrs. Sommerkorn for many years. Mrs. Sommerkorn, she said, owned a great deal of valuable property in The Bronx, also two houses in Twenty-second street.

"Mrs. Sommerkorn told me," said the witness, "that Summer had been in the real estate business, but gave it up to look after her affairs. She said she was very fond of him, and that she proposed to her many times, and that she had decided to become his wife. I told her not to, and the marriage was delayed."

At this point Justice Davis summoned a young woman from the rear of the courtroom.

"Why were you motoring with your fingers?" he asked.

"I don't know," she said.

"Well, you are fined $25," said Justice Davis.

The woman said her name was Christine French. She had formerly been Mrs. Sommerkorn's housekeeper.

The Russells were married at the Little Church Around the Corner on Sept. 20, 1907, and have one child, Mary, a year old. They lived together in reasonable amity until last November, when Mrs. Russell learned something that caused her to pack up and leave home with her baby.

She employed detectives to watch her husband. On Jan. 17, 1908, Eugene Collins, one of the plaintiffs, according to the evidence taken by the referee, traced Russell and a woman from Russell's office to the Albany Hotel, at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway. Russell registered there. Collins saw him, and took a room with the woman. After a time Collins and another detective named Rafferty went to the room and found what they said they saw the referee was entitled to a divorce.

Russell willingly admitted the detectives, and the referee ordered that he should be confined to his room and that he should be confined to his room and that he should be confined to his room.

"I will prove to the court," said Patrick L. Ryan, who appears for the plaintiffs, "that the defendant is Perren H. Summer, and has a long criminal record. He has served several terms in Sing Sing."

Summer's defense is that he lived in the same house with Mrs. Sommerkorn for six years before he married her, and during that time he attended to all her private business, and that her relatives neglected her.

Stirred Up Jealousy.

The brother called Mary Elizabeth Hardy, a prim young woman, to the stand. She said:

"Summer called once to see Miss Wood. He said to me: 'I have an old lady down in Twenty-ninth street and am going to get her and her bodice. She is very jealous. Come down and see me and make her more jealous. I know a rich Westerner and I'll introduce you.'"

Justice Davis took quick action in an effort to run down a poison theory after Detective George H. Griffin had testified. Griffin identified Horton Summer as Perren H. Summer.

"Somebody sent a complaint to Headquarters," said Griffin, "and I went to the West Twenty-ninth street house. I saw the nurse, Miss Louise Gallap, in the room. Mrs. Sommerkorn was lying in bed, gasping for breath. The nurse handed me a glass with a white substance in it. I took the glass and poured the substance into a bottle. It looked like white crystals. I took the bottle to Headquarters and it was sent to a doctor for analysis."

"Did you subpoena the analyst?"

Justice Davis asked counsel for the plaintiff.

"I have tried to," said Mr. Ryan. "Send to Police Headquarters at once and get that analysis," said Justice Davis.

TAKES DRINK IN SALOON; THEN SHOOT HIMSELF

Well-Dressed Stranger Had Cut Identifying Marks from Clothing.

A well dressed, prematurely gray man died today in the Harlem Hospital from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the right temple. His motive for shooting himself is as much of a mystery as his identity.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

A few seconds later a shot startled the men at the bar. They found the stranger lying by the table with a revolver beside him. There was no money in his clothes, no papers by which to identify him. All marks had been carefully cut out from his clothes.

The man entered the saloon of Thomas Brennan, at No. 200 Eighth avenue, late last night and asked for a drink. He was served by the bartender, Thomas Bolen, who had noticed him pacing up and down in front of the saloon for some time, as though waiting for someone. He took the drink and sat down at a table in the rear room.

RIKER'S SPRING REDUCTIONS

Riker's Preparations.

The products of our own Laboratory are sold under a positive guarantee of perfect satisfaction or money cheerfully refunded. Our own spring medicines are sold to you at one profit only and are very best that money and skill and experience can produce.

Patent Medicines.

It's safe to say that at no other stores in the world can there be found so many of the standard advertised brands of Patent Medicines as at Riker's Drug Stores. These prices tell the rest.

Riker's Price.	Price.
Allcock's Plasters.....	.25
Angier's Emulsion.....	.39
Antiphlogistine.....	.37
Arbman's Pills.....	.25
Arbman's Balsam.....	.19
Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.....	.40
Ayer's Pills.....	.25
Ayer's Sarsaparilla.....	.71
Borden's Malted Milk.....	.38
Brown's Bronchial Troches.....	.25
Brown's Large.....	.78
Brown's Campa. Tooth Powder.....	.25
Brace's Large.....	.38
Celery King Tea.....	.25
D. D. D.....	.89

BRING BACK THE EMPTY PACK.

And if a Riker's Preparation does not satisfy you, AND GET YOUR MONEY.

Dietrich's Ferro Mangan.....	.75
Father John's Medicine.....	.67
Goldman's Hair Restorer.....	.79
Glyco-Thymoline.....	.40
Hage's Cordial.....	.75
Hage's Hair Health.....	.75
Hage's Sarsaparilla.....	.75
Horlick's Malted Milk.....	.50
Horstford's Acid Phosphate.....	.35
Hottel's Bitters.....	.75
Hunyadi Water.....	.35

When You Are Spring Tired Take Riker's Sarsaparilla—It gives Permanent Strength.

J. & J. Belladonna Plasters.....	.12
Kohler's Headache Powders.....	.25
Liquozone.....	.33
Liquid Peptonoids.....	.78
Listerine.....	.59
Manfield's Capillaris.....	.39
Murdock's Food.....	.41
Nestle's Food.....	.38
New Skin.....	.25
Orangeine.....	.18
Orangeine.....	.35

All Standard Patent Medicines At Lower Prices Than You Can Buy Elsewhere.

Paw Paw.....	.100
Perez Davis Pain Killer.....	.39
Phillips' Phospho-Muriate.....	.19
Quinine Comp.....	.79
Pierce's Discovery.....	.78
Pierce's Prescription.....	.78
Pinkham's Compound.....	.73
Powers' Asthma Cure.....	.30
Rengo Fruit.....	.88
Robinson's Barley.....	.21
Shae.....	.19
Shae's Liniment.....	.25
Shae's Dyspepsia Tablets.....	.33
Stuart's Alterans, McCabe's.....	2.00
Stuart's Tablets.....	.19

AT THE NEW RIKER DRUG STORE, which everybody says is "THE BEST IN THE WORLD."

It is the only Riker High Quality Store. Excellent Service—Riker Low Prices.

13 and 15 West 34th Street.

Hospital and Sick Room Supplies.

Everything in this line of the very best. Standard goods at surprising prices.

Others' Price.	Riker's Price.
Absorbent Gauze.....	.40
All Rubber White.....	.35
Water Bottles.....	1.25
2 qt. 1.25	1.00
4 qt. 2.50	2.00
8 qt. 5.00	4.00
12 qt. 7.50	6.00
16 qt. 10.00	8.00
20 qt. 12.50	10.00
24 qt. 15.00	12.00
28 qt. 17.50	14.00
32 qt. 20.00	16.00
36 qt. 22.50	18.00
40 qt. 25.00	20.00
44 qt. 27.50	22.00
48 qt. 30.00	24.00
52 qt. 32.50	26.00
56 qt. 35.00	28.00
60 qt. 37.50	30.00
64 qt. 40.00	32.00
68 qt. 42.50	34.00
72 qt. 45.00	36.00
76 qt. 47.50	38.00
80 qt. 50.00	40.00
84 qt. 52.50	42.00
88 qt. 55.00	44.00
92 qt. 57.50	46.00
96 qt. 60.00	48.00
100 qt. 62.50	50.00

A Reliable Nurses' Registry at the New Riker Drug Store, 13 and 15 West 34th St.

Our business in this line is increasing by leaps and bounds. This is because we have the confidence of physicians and patients, and that's what we are proud of. Do you blame us?

We must confess to a feeling something like pride when we contemplate the growth of our Prescription business in our fourteen stores.

Prescription business does not come with talk or a vertiginous or extravagant claims. There is just one thing that increases any Prescription business, and that is the confidence of the Physician and the confidence of the Patient.

Our business in this line is increasing by leaps and bounds. This is because we have the confidence of physicians and patients, and that's what we are proud of. Do you blame us?

We must confess to a feeling something like pride when we contemplate the growth of our Prescription business in our fourteen stores.

Prescription business does not come with talk or a vertiginous or extravagant claims. There is just one thing that increases any Prescription business, and that is the confidence of the Physician and the confidence of the Patient.

Our business in this line is increasing by leaps and bounds. This is because we have the confidence of physicians and patients, and that's what we are proud of. Do you blame us?

We must confess to a feeling something like pride when we contemplate the growth of our Prescription business in our fourteen stores.

The Riker High Quality, Low Price Prestige

Has Never Been Questioned.

The fact that we buy for fourteen stores enables us to purchase the very highest quality of Drug Store Goods at prices impossible for smaller dealers.

Our willingness to divide such savings with our customers has given to us the largest Retail Drug Business in the world.

The Riker Drug Stores—4 in New York—5 in Brooklyn—5 in Boston.

RIKER SAVES YOU MONEY.

Striking illustrations of the actual savings you make at Riker's are found below, where we offer you goods at 1/3 off and 1/4 off the regular prices. Buy your Spring Medicines at Riker's.

1/3 Off or Lower on These Goods 1/4 Off or Lower on These Goods

4 on of Lower on these Goods		4 on of Lower on these Goods
Reg.	1-3 Off.	Reg.	1-4 Off.
Arnica Tooth Soap.....	.25	Alkalithia.....	1.25
Bathasweet.....	.25	Atwood's Bitters.....	.25
Beecham's Pills.....	.25	Angier's Emulsion.....	1.00
Borine.....	1.00	Bromo Caffeine.....	1.25
Bromo Seltzer.....	.10	Campbell's Complexion Wafers.....	1.00
Bromo Seltzer.....	.25	Carbena.....	1.00
Benson's Plasters.....	.25	Castoria.....	.35
Brown's Bronchial Troches.....	.25	Eau Sublime.....	1.00
Brown's Campa. Tooth Powder.....	.25	Empress Hair Dye.....	.75
Burnham's Cham Bouillon.....	1.00	Enos Fruit Salt.....	1.00
Calden's Dentine.....	.25	Glover's Dog Remedies.....	.50
Calox.....	.25	Gray's Glycerine Tonic.....	1.00
Charles Flesh Food.....	.50	Guide's Peptonmangan.....	1.00
Cole's Dandruff Cure.....	.50	Haze's Cordial.....	1.00
Coke's Dandruff Cure.....	1.00	Humphreys' Specifics.....	.25
Cuticura Soap.....	.25	Hyomel (Inhalant).....	.50
Dandierine.....	.25	Hyomel (complete).....	.50
Dandierine.....	.50	Hyomel Peptonoids and Croosote.....	1.00
Dioxogen.....	.75	Maltine (all combinations).....	1.00
Egg Emulsion and C. L. O. (Parke Davis).....	1.00	Manola.....	1.00
Ess. Peppin, Fairchild.....	.50	Mellin's Food.....	.75
Ess. Peppin, Fairchild.....	1.00	Mirand's Liniment.....	.25
Euthymol Tooth Paste.....	.50	Munyon's Remedies.....	.25
Euxesis Shaving Cream.....	.50	Nervolis.....	1.00
Fairchild's Peptonizing Tubes.....	.50	Paine's Celery Compound.....	1.00
Father John's Medicine.....	.50	Pencos's Bromides.....	1.00
Fellow's Syrup.....	1.50	Perana.....	1.00
Frostilla.....	.25	Orangeine.....	1.00
Hay's Hair Health.....	.50	Pebeco Tooth Paste.....	.50
Hind's Honey and Almond Cream.....	.50	Phillips' Emulsion C. L. O.....	1.00
Hood's Tooth Powder.....	.25	Picksecker's Skin Soap.....	.25
Kilmer's Swamp Root.....	1.00	Piso's Consumption Cure.....	.25
Labiache Face Powder.....	.50	Reoue de Theatre, No. 15.....	.25
Laxative Bromo Quinine.....	.25	Russell's Emulsion.....	1.00
Listerine.....	.50	Russell's Asthma Cure.....	1.00
Magda Cream.....	.50	Scott's Emulsion.....	1.00
Marchand's Peroxide of Hydrogen.....	1.00	Scott's Emulsion C. L. O.....	.50
Omega Oil.....	.50	Squibb's Talcum.....	.25
Oxyzen Balm.....	.25	Stuart's Dyspepsia Tabs.....	1.00
Packer's Tar Soap.....	.50	Swift's Specific.....	1.00
Pond's Extract.....	1.00	Virgin Oil Pine.....	.50
Purifonam.....	.25	Warner's Safe Cure.....	1.00
Schenck's Pills.....	.25	Westphal's Auxiliator.....	1.00
Sheffer's Colerine.....	1.00	White Birchton Remedy.....	1.00
Spiro Powder.....	.25		